

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. Inspiration of the Old Testament proved from the New, Vol. i. Part 1. Introd. p. xxv. The Gospels being true histories, their testimony is true, ib. According to their evidence, Christ sanctioned the Jewish opinion respecting the Divine authority of the Old Testament, p. xxvi.: even in such details as Jonah's history, Jonah i. 17. This Jewish testimony of the greater weight from the national enmity to the Gospel, Isa. liii. 1. Holy Scripture true in regard to natural phenomena as well as to doctrine, Vol. i. Part 1. p. xix. The natural cosmogony in Genesis analogous to the spiritual cosmogony of the Gospel, ib. Respective provinces of Scripture and of profane history defined, p. xxx. Proverbs, book of, stands first of Solomon's trilogy, Vol. iv. Part 8. Introd. p. ix. The Song first written, Ecclesiastes last, Proverbs the fruit of mature age: its approximate date, ib. Prov. i. 4. The books placed as they stand in order of subjects. Proverbs written in an age of high material prosperity and intellectual wealth as a moral and spiritual manual, an antidote for their poison, pp. ix, x. Written (as was Ecclesiastes yet more) with a special view to Rehoboam, like Cicero's De Officiis for his son, p. x. Prov. i. 8; v. 3. 14; vi. p. 13; ov. 4. 6. 12; vii. 7; x. 5; xvi. 10; xvii. 2. 16. 18—21; xix. 12. 13. 27; xxi. 17. 20. Even the Lord condescended to use a heathen proverb to Saul, and S. Paul to the Corinthians, p. x. But Solomon's come from above and look upward, making our duty to God the rule of life (Prov. xx. 22; xxi. 30), and so preparing for the teaching of the Divine Solomon in the Gospel, p. vi. Prov. i. 1; iii. 1; xxiv. 33, 34. The Hebrew maschal is rather Parable (which see) or similitude, than Proverb, p. xi, and notes, 2, 3. Prov. i. 1; viii. p. 18: intricate and dark sayings (Prov. i. 6), as in Matt. xiii. 35, pp. xi. 18. Deep spiritual mysteries, ib. Following ancient rather than modern expositions (Prov. viii. 22) this book should be regarded as one of practical apothegms (grounded on the Law of the Lord, Prov. i. 7), typical of the spiritual life, ib. Illustration in the contrast between Wisdom and the Strange Woman, pp. xii, xiii. Those high doctrines, such as that of the Trinity, found even by the Arians in this book in regard to Wisdom, not necessarily understood fully by Solomon, but to be explained of his Divine Antitype: written and deciphered for us by the Spirit, pp. xii, xiii. Prov. i. p. 1; viii. p. 18. Yet, from the Canticles, we know that Solomon's wisdom given him at Gibeon made him a recipient and dispenser of divine mysteries, p. xiii. Wisdom, something judicial and royal: that of God in its fullest sense rightly regarded by the Fathers as Christ, Prov. i. 20. 23. 24. 27; iii. 18. 19; viii. p. 18; ov. 15. 17. 23. Hengstenberg's argument for this view, pp. 18, 19. While both the strange (Prov. ii. 16; vii. 14. Heb. sarah and noeri) and the virtuous (Prov. xxxi. 10) woman are to be taken literally, to our great profit, they also typify respectively heretical teaching (the harlotry of the intellect) and the True Church which it mimics, pp. xiii, xiv. Prov. ii. 17; ix. 13. Vol. iv. Part 3. p. 124. Like the Pentateuch and the Psalms this book consists of five parts, each with its peculiar organization: (1) ch. i.—ix., introductory: (2) ch. x.—xxiv.: (3) ch. xxv.—xxix., proverbs of Solomon, copied by the men of Hezekiah: (4) ch. xxx. words of Agur: (5) ch. xxxi., words of Lemuel, p. xiv. In Part 1 the verses mostly consist of two synonyms, or synthetical members (see Strophical arrangement), in a rhetorical style, ib. In Part 2, ch. x.—xv. consist mostly of opposed or antithetical members, equiposed in systematic connexion contrasted by vav (p. 24), with some acrostic mnemonic arrangements, ib. Prov. x. 7. 10. 20. Triple antithesis, Prov. xii. 5. In ch. xvi.—xxii. 16, are found com-

- plete synthetical parallelisms. In ch. xxii. 17—xxiv. they are synthetical, mostly supported by some reason, the prohibitory formula predominating, pp. xiv, xv. Pleadings with Rehoboam in personal apostrophe, Prov. xxii. 17; xxiii. 11. Part 8 consists of single Proverbs and similes of artificial construction (Prov. xxv. 14), ch. xxvii. 23—27 being an allegory of the pastoral care, ch. xxviii. xxix. being antithetical, p. xv. Parts 4 and 5 are synthetical. Catchwords (which see) connect the matter in the Proverbs as in the Psalms, p. xv. Prov. xx. 1. Objections to the portions ascribed to Solomon, from tautology or other more arbitrary reasons, not worth considering. Commentators ancient and modern, pp. xv, xvi. The book of Proverbs built on the Psalms and an echo of them, in an ethical and didactic sense, (Prov. xi. 28—31). Like them has a Prologue (ch. i.—ix.). Catchwords connect it with the Prologue to the Psalms, as does the continuity of the prophetic spirit, Prov. i. p. 1; v. 15; ch. ii. 20—22; iii. 1; x. p. 24. Internal marks of authenticity, Prov. xvi. 10. Identity of language with Ecclesiastes, proving sameness of author, Prov. i. 17; xii. 12; xxiii. 2; xxxi. 30. 31. Passages derived from Job, Prov. iii. 11. 13; viii. 11. 14; xxvi. 7; xxx. 4. 5. 32. No cause for doubting the authority of ch. vi. 1—19, which is suited to warn a luxurious age, p. 12. Repeated warnings against suretyship designed for the weak Rehoboam, p. 13: when bound for a friend to a strange lender, Prov. vi. 1. 3. Power of the Eternal Logos, or Divine Wisdom, in Creation, ch. viii., and in Grace, ch. ix. p. 22. His house the Church, Prov. ix. 1. His institution of the Sacramental feast, vv. 2. 5. The first two parts put forth by Solomon a βασιλικὸν δῶρον to Rehoboam: those collected by Hezekiah's men (Isa. xxxviii. p. 110) an appendix of gleanings from the great harvest of three thousand parables or proverbs bound together with method and order, Prov. xxv. 1. Analogy of the first book of Psalms, collected by David himself, ib. The fourth part, one of the most profound passages of Holy Scripture, Prov. xxx. p. 64. Agur son of Jakeh probably symbolical for Solomon; so Ithiel and Ucal symbolical p. 65. Cp. v. 17. As Kohaleth (fem.) of Ecclesiastes. This prologue promises a revelation of mysteries, Prov. xxx. 1. Sex Quadrage, six sets of four things each, v. 10. Spiritual meaning, vv. 14. 17. 19. 20. 21—23. The Church symbolized, v. 28: so also Christ, vv. 29—31. The fifth part by Lemuel, a symbolical name for Solomon, as taught by his mother, the Hebrew Church, Prov. xxxi. 1. Acrostic (to aid the memory) on the Virtuous Woman, a type of the Hebrew, then of Christ's Church, in the world, and at the Last Day, vv. 10—31. Her Husband Christ, v. 23.

Pentecostal: the thunderstorm typifying the terrors of Sinai and the wonders of the outpouring of the Spirit, p. 39; vv. 7. 9. 10. Ps. xxx. spiritualized in Christ's birth and resurrection, vv. 5. 7. Connected with Ps. xxxi. and Ps. xxxii. foreshadowing the Agony and Passion, p. 42. Adopted by Christ on the Cross, v. 5. The penitential Ps. xxxii. (as also Ps. xxxviii., v. 56), used for the Hebrew Great Day of Atonement, p. 44. Ps. xxxiii. without inscription, as a continuation of the preceding one, p. 46. Ps. xxxiv. xxxv. also a pair, p. 48, the latter clearly prophetic of Christ's sufferings, p. 49; vv. 10. 13. 16. 17. 21. In Ps. xxxv. the comminations are not from David, but from Christ, who warns in mercy (p. 107); whose Cross is become like a judgment-seat (see Threatenings), Ps. xxxv. 4; xl. 14; lv. 15; lxix. 22; (especially cix. p. 174; v. 31). Duly succeeded by its echo, a Psalm of Resurrection and Ascension, p. 51. Ps. xxxvii. seems to belong to David's period of old age and feebleness, and to Abiathar's rebellion: Ps. xxxvii. Providentia Speculum, may be referred typically to Christ's Passion week, "Fret not thyself," "Have faith in God," p. 52. A group of four (xxxviii.—xli.) closing the first book of Psalter, seem to belong to the time when David from his weakness (Ps. xxxviii. 8; xxxix. 13) was supernaturally raised up again, p. 55. See David. Second book of Psalter ends in a similar group of four (lxix.—lxxii.) composed on the same occasion, pp. 55. 61. 105. 109. 110; lxxi. 9. 18. 23; lxxii. p. 112. The two sets compared in parallel columns, p. 55. Ps. xxxviii. penitential, a sacrificial remembrance of sin, p. 56. Ps. xxxix. breathes the spirit of Job, v. 13. Ps. xl. on the Great Sacrifice: its Liturgical use, p. 58; vv. 15. 17. "Mine ears hast thou opened," explained, and compared with the paraphrase of the Septuagint and S. Paul, v. 6. Its concluding verses (13—17) comprise Ps. lxx., a sequel of the Good Friday Passion Psalm, lxx. p. 61. Ps. xli. claimed for Himself by Christ, p. 61. Ps. xlii. beginning the second book, bears much resemblance to Ps. iii., the virtual commencement of the first. Both written during Absalom's rebellion (Ps. xlii. 6), p. 63. Analogies between the two books detailed. Like the first, foreshadows Christ, ib. The moral of both is sorrow, the road to blessedness. Use of Jehovah chiefly in Book i. Elohim in Book ii. accounted for, p. 64. Inscribed rather "of (to) the sons of Korah," as inspired writers, just as "of (to) David," pp. 4. 66 (see Korah), like κατά prefixed to the gospels; many writers, One Spirit, p. 63. The Korahites speak in David's name, ib. Ps. xlii. xliii. (really one, p. 65) written in banishment from the Temple (so Ps. lxxiv. p. 133) during Absalom's rebellion. When used in Hebrew and Latin Liturgies, p. 64. Ps. xlv. "Of Martyrs," on occasion of an assault of heathens, perhaps the same as of the Edomites in Ps. lx. lxxx., leading on to Ps. xlv., which is one of triumph, p. 66. Ps. xlv., like Ps. viii. of first book, speaks of Christ's triumphant exaltation and the Church's glory, as the Queen and Bride, p. 68. When used in Western Churches, ib. Referred to Messiah both by the Jews and the Fathers, ib. Title and occasion examined, ib.

Compared with Canticles. Solomon's marriage a faint image of the glorious subject, which is Christ as God, ib. Vol. iv. Part 3. p. 123. Ps. xlv. on the Church's perpetuity, probably of Hezekiah's age, p. 71. Cp. p. 138. Ps. xlvii. for the Ascension (written on the same occasion of David's bringing up the Ark to Zion as Ps. xxiv. lxviii.), a prelude to the Whitsunday Psalm lxviii., p. 72. Orderly progression and ascent of prophetic imagery from Ps. xlv. to Ps. lxviii., p. 73. This last a Whitsun Psalm of the Western Church. Written on occasion of Jehoshaphat's victory (2 Chr. xx. 1—23), ib., vv. 4. 7. 8. 10. 12, 13. Cp. Ps. lxxxiii. p. 131. Ps. xlix. rises from the victories of one people, to address the whole world. Can death (Ps. lxviii. 14) be subdued? p. 75. As Ps. xlix. speaks of redemption, so Asaph's Ps. l. of judgment, also addressed to the whole world, p. 77. A Vision of Judgment at Zion, Ps. l. 2. Ps. li. David's great penitential cry, denoting his deep remorse, p. 79. His prayer universal, v. 13. David and Solomon were both builders of the walls of Jerusalem, and cities of Judah, hence there is no mark of later date, ib. Ps. lxix. 85. Ps. liii. an expansion of Ps. lii. p. 82: repeats Ps. xiv. with some later and original touches, v. 5. In Ps. liv. the Liturgies teach us to rise from David to Christ, v. 3. Ps. lv. passes (as often) from David's persecution by Saul to Absalom's rebellion, p. 83; vv. 7. 9. 13. Ps. lvii. a Resurrection Psalm, vv. 5. 8. So Ps. lviii. 9. Ps. lviii. lix. connected with it: the unjust judgment which condemned Christ, Ps. lviii. 1; Ps. lix. p. 88. Ps. lx. the Church triumphant, p. 90, while the vanquished rejoice, v. 8. Absalom's rebellion gave occasion also to Ps. lxi.—lxiv., all continuous, pp. 92—95. Cp. Ps. cxliii. 6. In Ps. lxx. (amplified in Ps. lxxvi.) we have thanks for David's restoration, and for a bounteous harvest, pp. 96, 97. Ps. lxxxv. 12: spiritualized, Ps. lxx. 12. The subject expanded, Ps. lxxvii., and applied to "The World's Harvest Home," p. 99: grounded on the Aaronic Benediction, v. 1. These several Psalms preparatory for the great Pentecostal Psalm lxviii., both of Hebrew (vv. 8. 9) and Christian Church, p. 99. Written by David, when returning with the Ark (v. 1) after victory, p. 100. Higher spiritual meaning taught by S. Paul, ib., vv. 1. 11. 18. Repose of the Church between the two sheepfolds of Jew and Gentile flocks, v. 13. Pentecost followed by Passion Psalm, lxx. p. 106. When used in Liturgies, ib. This Psalm (which is much like Ps. xl.) and Ps. xxii. most frequently quoted in the New Testament, ib. Some portions of it only applicable to Christ, vv. 3. 21: some partially to others as types, Jer. xxxviii. 6: David, as a prophet, being lifted up out of himself in uttering them, vv. 3. 21. Ps. lxx. lxxi. both Passion Psalms, made up from others: when used in Liturgies, pp. 109, 110. Ps. lxxii. rather "to Solomon" (Ps. cxxvii. p. 201). Written by him at David's side, p. 112. Fulfilled mainly in Christ, vv. 3. 8. 10. 15. 17. Cited as such, Zech. ix. 10. Ps. lxxiii. opening of the third book, a moral Prologue, p. 115. Ps. lxxiv. one of distress, seems to date after the Captivity, p. 116. So Ps. lxxix. p. 126; lxxx. p. 127. Ps. lxxv. one of thanksgiving, p. 118. Ps. lxxvi. of Hezekiah's age. A vision of Universal Judgment, p. 119. Ps. lxxviii. an historical apologia for Judah after rebellion of the Ten Tribes, p. 121; vv. 67, 68. Ps. lxxx. a prayer for the dispersed people, v. 15. Ps. lxxxi. for the new and full moon of Tisri, anticipates a future deliverance, p. 129. This Psalm and the next were appointed to be sung at the Feast of Tabernacles, ib. Ps. lxxxiii. connected in language and tone (v. 4) with some just preceding, seems to have been written by Jahaziel, the Levite, in the time of Jehoshaphat's distress, p. 131. Ps. lxxxiv. on privileges of God's people, p. 132. Written on the same occasion as Ps. xlii. xliii., p. 133. Ps. lxxxv. refers to Christ's Incarnation rather than to the return from Babylon, p. 135. A Christmas Hymn of Pardon and so used in the Western Church, ib., vv. 1. 8. 9. 10. Ps. lxxxvi. The only one in the third book ascribed to David: why mixed up with the Psalms of others. Its subdued tone, typical meaning, and Latin use at the Feast of Epiphany, p. 136. Ps. lxxxvii. (like Ps. xlv.) by a large-hearted Korahite of Hezekiah's age, also an Epiphany Hymn, p. 138; vv. 4. 6. 7. Ps. lxxxvii. best comment upon Isa. xlv. 5. The pair of Passion Psalms, lxxxviii. lxxxix., the former the saddest in the Psalter, written in some time of deep affliction, p. 139: prophetic of Christ, vv. 3. 5. 18. Ps. lxxxix. a spiritual Allegro to that Pensive, a Christmas carol of the Incarnation, telling of Christ's eternal kingdom (vv. 25—29. 36. 37), designed to comfort Judah after the revolt of the ten tribes, when oppressed by Shishak, p. 141; vv. 10. 18. 30. 40—44. The third book ends with a Doxology of joyful assurance, v. 52. Internal reasons for placing Moses' Psalm xc. at the opening of Book iv., p. 145. Compared with Ps. cxxvi., vv. 13—15. Ps. xci. perhaps belongs to the Captivity, v. 3. Quoted by Christ against

Satan, on whom it recoils, p. 147; v. 13. Ps. xcii.—iv., their place in the Hebrew ritual after the Captivity, referring to the Return and rebuilding of the Temple (Isa. lii. 7), illustrating Ezra's history, pp. 148, 149, 150. Ps. xciv. Christ's betrayal and unjust trial, v. 20. Ps. xcvi. the great invitational Psalm of Western Liturgies. Ascribed to David in the Septuagint, but not in the Hebrew, or necessarily in Heb. iv. 7, p. 151. Ps. xcvi. how a new song, derived from David's, 1 Chr. xvi, fitted to commemorate mercies after the Captivity. "A missionary Hymn for all ages," an universal Te Deum, p. 152. Ps. xcvi.—xcix. a group celebrating Christ as Jehovah the King (Ps. xcix. 4) and Judge, p. 153. Ps. xcvi. a remarkable gloss adopted by certain Fathers, v. 10. Ps. xcvi. reaching on to the General Judgment: its Liturgical use, p. 154; v. 7. Ps. xcvi. of the Anodus, Isa. lii. 10. Ps. c. sequel of the preceding, p. 156, but Ps. ci. David's, after he had brought up the Ark: placed here by the builders of the second Temple, p. 157. Ps. xv. and xxiv. its best comments, v. 2. Ps. cii. written on the Return, for the desolations of Zion, perhaps by Nehemiah, p. 158; vv. 6, 7, 8, 13, 14. Compared with Ps. cxlvii. of the same age, p. 158. Penitential Psalm for Ash Wednesday, ib. Ps. ciii., like Ps. ci., written by David, and transferred from its place for its adaptation to the wants of the returning pilgrims, p. 160. Ps. civ. Hexameron, an Oratorio of Creation, Gen. i. set to music: applied in the Liturgies to the work of Redemption and Sanctification, p. 161: reaching to the Judgment, vv. 32, 35. Of Nehemiah's age, v. 24: so also Ps. cv. 8, 9; cvi. 6, 19. Ps. cv. the earliest Hodu Psalm, partly derived from David, p. 164: Ps. cvi. a continuation of Ps. cv. by the same author, p. 167. David used the close of Ps. cvi. in 1 Chr. xvi. prophetically, vv. 47, 48. The fourth book ends in a prayer and blessing, which are answered in the fifth, p. 170. The fifth book comprises gleanings of the great harvest, stored in the first and second, fifteen being David's, one Solomon's, the rest anonymous, ib. Ps. cvii., fallen man in his fourfold misery: hungry, captive, sick, sea-tossed, p. 170. Ps. cviii. rightly ascribed to David, as being an Anthem composed after the return from Babylon, a new song made up from Ps. lvii. and lx., p. 173. In Ps. cix. (Psalmus Iacriticus, v. 8) Christ the King and Judge, though now suffering, speaketh through the prophet: the awful imprecations (retained in the Septuagint and New Testament) must not be softened into futures (see above, Ps. xxxv.), p. 174: directed against Judas and the treacherous Jews, whom he represents, Jer. xix. 11. The language adopted by Nehemiah, in whose time the Psalm must have obtained its present place in the Psalter, p. 174. Not prompted by passion, v. 4. The curse fulfilled in the next generation, vv. 13. These maledictions applicable by way of anagogy to our own sins, warning us of righteous judgment, v. 31. As between Ps. xiii.—xxiv. (p. 38), so now again, we pass from the Passion, Ps. cix., to the Resurrection and Exaltation of Christ, Ps. cx. Christ and even many Rabbis refer Ps. cx. to Messiah. Testimony to the Jews of a priesthood of Melchizedek, not Aaronic, p. 176. Liturgical use, p. 177. Christ's glorious Session, v. 1. The acrostic Psalms, cxi. cxii., closely parallel, the one speaking of the eternal endurance of God's commandments, the other of the security of those that keep them, p. 178. Ps. cxiii.—cxviii. the great Hallel, sung at all the Festivals, probably used by Christ and His disciples after His Paschal supper, p. 179. Ps. cxiv. the Exodus from Egypt prefiguring the Exodus from Babylon, that of Christ's Resurrection and Advent, and our deliverance from sin: an Easter Hymn, p. 180. Ps. cxiv. cxv. closely connected: joined in the versions, p. 181. Ps. cxvi. thanksgiving for the return from Babylon, might be Nehemiah's, vv. 1, 13, 16. Ps. cxvii. prophecies the conversion of the heathen, p. 184. Ps. cxviii. composed for the dedication of the second Temple (vv. 9, 10, 15). Interlocutory and anti-strophical in form, p. 184. vv. 19—21, 26. Prophetic of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem (v. 25), an Easter Hymn (v. 27), ib. The Lord's Day, v. 24. Ps. cxix. alphabetical, to impress the memory. Probably written by Ezra (vv. 9, 46, 99, 100, 121, 126), when, in concert with Nehemiah (vv. 50, 51, 53, 54, 55, 57, 61, 69, 121), he read the Law to the people. A spiritual rebuilding of the Church by means of God's Word, p. 186. In each of the twenty-two stanzas, some special excellence of the Word celebrated, p. 187. The first or third persons used promiscuously for good cause, public worship being combined with private study, ib. Law, the general term, discriminated from testimonies, ways, precepts, statutes, commandments, judgments, word, oral promise (Heb. imrah), v. 1. Job imitated, v. 96. Ps. cxx.—cxxiv. Songs of Degrees or Up-goings, of different dates. So called for various reasons. Two of them Christmas Hymns, all full of joyful associations, 'composing a holy ladder reaching to heaven, Ps. cxx. p. 186—7. Isa. xxxv. 10; xl. p. 114; lii. 10. Jer. xxiii. 7, 8. Ps. cxx. of Nehemiah's age, p. 197; vv. 2, 4, 5. Ps. cxxi. perhaps Ezra's, v. 1. Ps. cxxii. David's joy on bringing up the Ark, revived in Zerubbabel (pp. 201—2): perhaps sung at the Dedication of Nehemiah's walls, p. 198; v. 3. Ps. cxxiii. also seems to be Nehemiah's, vv. 2, 3, 4. Ps. cxxiv. though David's, yet put here for its appropriateness to the times after the Return, p. 200. Ps. cxxv. suits returning exiles and pilgrims at the Festivals, vv. 1, 2. Of Nehemiah's age, vv. 3, 4. Ps. cxxvi. describes the people's joy when the Temple was rebuilt, v. 5. To be fully verified at the world's Harvest Home, v. 6. Ps. cxxvii. suggested "to Solomon" by the Holy Spirit: the builder of the first Temple expresses the feelings of the builders of the second, the present uniting with the past, p. 201—2. Compared with Ecclesiastes, Vol. iv. Part 3. p. 82. Christ, the Divine Archer, v. 5. Relation of Ps. cxxviii. (of later age) to the preceding, v. 1. A marriage Psalm, v. 8. Ps. cxxix. cxxx. connected: probably Nehemiah's, p. 204. Ps. cxxx. penitential: Liturgical use, ib. Watching for the day of Christ's Advent, v. 6. Ps. cxxxi. David's lowliness adopted to express the feeling of his descendant Zerubbabel and of Joshua, p. 205. Ps. cxxxii. on the Incarnation: God's promise to David of an everlasting seed, p. 206; vv. 17, 18. Later than his time, v. 10. Ps. cxxxiii. David's seirenon (p. 206), an exhortation to union, p. 207. Pentecostal, v. 3. Ps. cxxxiv. (last of Up-goings) of later date, the people's response to his call, p. 208. Ps. cxxxv.—cxxxvii. songs of praise for those who have gone up to Zion. Ps. cxxxv. a sacred mosaic from earlier Psalms, p. 209. Ps. cxxxvi. sometimes called the "Great Hallel," may have been sung when the foundation of the second Temple was laid, p. 210. Derived from the Pentateuch and earlier Psalms, ib. Ps. cxxxvii. song of the Church militant transfigured into the Church glorified, p. 211. Cyrus pronounced blessed, as fulfilling the Divine pleasure. The captives in this Psalm accept and re-echo the judicial decrees against Babylon revealed in God's word. Yet even David declares his hatred of what God hates (Ps. cxxxix. 19), v. 9. Eight Psalms which follow, ascribed to David, placed here by Ezra as a manual of private devotion (Ps. cxliii. 6). Their structure analyzed, p. 213. Ps. cxxxix. David's diction modernized by Aramaisms, p. 214. Ps. cxl. cxli. supplicatory: sequel to the preceding: their Liturgical use, p. 216. Ps. cxlii. Christ's cross our crown, v. 7. Ps. cxliii. a sequel. Penitential, p. 218. Written on the same occasion as Ps. lxiii. v. 6. Ps. cxliv. of praise on David's restoration, p. 219. Compared with Ps. xviii. his last song, vv. 5—7. Ps. cxlv. David's last Psalm consummated in praise. Its title stands alone, but gives its Hebrew name to the whole Psalter, p. 221. Whitsunday Hymn, preparatory to the commission to baptize in the name of the Blessed Trinity, v. 21. Close of Psalter in five Hallelujah Psalms (cxlvi.—cl.): their Liturgical use, and missionary function, pp. 22—3. Ps. cxlvi. 5, 6; cxlvii. 2, 18; cxlviii. 12. Ps. cxlvii. sung at the Dedication of Nehemiah's walls, p. 224; v. 13; cxlviii. 12. Reference to Job xxxviii.—ix., vv. 4—16.
